Down They Come!

The Southern Rights party of Kentucky and of the South will be gratified to learn that Douglass, or even any sympathy with his views, is fast dying out in Kentucky. We are just in receipt of two papers from the upper portion of the State, the Frankfort Yeoman and Cincinnati Age, which both surrender the question of non-protection to slave property in the Territories by Congress, and though reluctantly, yet gracefully, take position in the great Constitutional party to the Union.—Paducah Herald.

It is no new thing under the sun for men to accuse others of that of which themselves are guilty. This cry of "catch rogue" has been used oftentimes to let the real offender escape. A crazy man will stoutly contend that everybody else is crazed, and that he is the only sane man in the universe. When a fellow gets "tight," and his head turns round, he thinks the house and all aboard is whirling giddily. We will not say that friend Noble is in this category, but it is apparent that he feels the necessity of making an easy place to descend upon from the lofty height he has recently occupied. The Yeoman has all the while occupied the precise ground it now occupies, being the precise ground taken by Mr. Magoffin. This position was ridiculed by the Courier and Herald, and was in derision dubbed "admirable logic." That logic was stated to be, "1. Congress has power to protect slavery in the Territories. 2. It is the duty of Congress to protect it. 3. Congress ought not to discharge its duty."

We endeavored to get our friends to see that, as they admitted there was no immediate necessity for the exercise of Congressional power, that Mr. Magoffin's position was correct, and not even subject to their attempt at criticism. They could not see that, although it is the admitted duty of Congress to provide, if necessary, men and money to whip all Europe, yet that it would be extreme folly to charge a statesman with denying that Congress ought to discharge its duty because he would not vote against an increase of the army or the public debt for such a purpose. Our friend at Paducah at length heard Mr. Magoffin, and light at once broke in upon him. He now sees through the Courier's "admirable logic" so much extolled in the Herald; and that a man may well believe in both the power and duty of Congress to afford protection when necessary, and yet oppose the unnecessary exercise of the power. We are glad the Herald has got right; we are not particular how it has happened. We give Magoffin the credit for the conversion, not being ourselves ambitious to claim it. Nor do we claim that friend Noble has "come down"—we rather think he has come up to the true position of all national Democrats.

In another column we publish the amount of expenditure and copies of some of the accounts for furnishing and maintaining the Governor's house in Frankfort. While we must say that as a journalist we have no taste for thrusting such matters into a canvass, and consider them but a poor argument on either side, yet we think, in all sincerity, that much will be found in the statements published in this issue of our paper to awaken the attention of the people of this State to the extravagance of their own home government. Eleven thousand dollars in one year is too much to be expended on the old rat-trap of a house denominated by courtesy "the Governor's Palace."

In saying this much, and in all we may have to say upon these subjects hereafter, we do not wish to be understood as attacking or criticising the bills of the several mechanics and dealers of this town who contracted for and executed the work. We must take their bills to be fair and correct in all respects without information to the contrary. The blame attaches, not to them, but to the government officials who ordered the work. For our part, we wish our mechanics could have had more State patronage if they had been employed on more useful and durable work under authority of law.

The Paducah Herald says that Magoffin has authorized the publication of a paper stating his position upon the subject of Congressional intervention, and that a copy of this document has been sent to us. We have not received it, as yet.

EXTRAVAGANCE AT HOME!

ANOTHER ITEM FOR THE "CAMPAIGN."
Something for K. N. Opposition Orators to Grow Eloquent Over!

The Opposition stumpers in the State, with Hon. Joshua F. Bell and our present Attorney General at their head, as we believe, have about run out of items of Government extravagance with which to frighten the people. The Speaker's and Door-Keeper's rooms in the magnificent Capitol at Washington have been ransacked until not another towel, brush, comb, looking-glass, or soap ball, can be found by these industrious political upholsterers to be discussed and paraded before attentive audiences. Out of pure kindness, therefore, and to give these eloquent gentlemen something with which to vary their popular entertainments, we have concluded to publish from time to time, for their benefit, some of the more interesting items of extravagance under our State Government. This arrangement they will consider admirable. They can now jump from National to State extravagance with easy leaps, and never allow the interest in their remarks to flag or their audiences to become bored with stale repetitions. When they have mentioned the looking-glasses at Washington they can refer to the famous cooking-stoves, "What Nots," &c., in the Governor's Palace at Frankfort.

The first instalment of these items of extravagance in the State Government is in reference to the Governor's Palace. Our figures may be relied upon. We get them from the accurate State Auditor. Some days since several gentlemen of this place called upon Mr. Page for certified statements of the matters set forth below. He readily furnished copies of the accounts in his office, but failed to give the statements in the form in which they had been asked. He gave, however, copies of all the accounts for repairs upon the public buildings and furnishing the Governor's House, and from these we have selected the items presented in this article.

It will be seen from the subjoined statement of accounts that it cost the State over $11,000 to furnish and maintain the Governor's House for the first year of the present Know-Not-1-ig Opposit administration. The amount expended for similar purposes the first year of Governor Powell's administration, as well as we can ascertain from the accounts furnished us from the Auditor's Office, was about $3,000 only. The proportion of balance in favor of Democratic economy is striking.

Old Buck governs thirty odd States—Gov. Morehead one. The expenses of maintaining the "White House" under the administration of the one ought to amount to over three hundred thousand dollars per annum, if his style of living corresponds with that of the other in proportion to the relative extent and importance of the Federal and State Governments. Eleven thousand dollars for furnishing and keeping the "Palace" for one year will very properly be considered extravagant by all who have seen that house. The house, grounds and all, would not bring eleven thousand dollars cash at public or private sale. Everybody in Frankfort knows this, and it is astonishing how that much money could be spent upon it. The Opposition State administration would have done a great deal better had it built a new "Palace" out and out, and we believe the cost to the State would not have been greater. But here are the accounts—here's the way the money goes:

After examination I am of opinion this bill is correct. E. HENSLEY, S. P. P.

Approved: C. S. MOREHEAD.

Entered on Ex. Journal 1st January, 1856.

T. P. ATTICUS BIBB.

(b) This bill is chiefly for carpets—one item is 100 yards carpet @ $2 10 per yard.

(c) We give a full copy of this bill as furnished by the Auditor. It is for a concern called a "kitchen," which we understand to answer for a cooking-stove. It must be confessed that the people pay well for cooking the Governor's victuals:

STATE OF KENTUCKY:

1855. To E. Lewis Dr.

For 1 kitchener as per bill.....$302 00

For 1 hot air furnace and register.....175 00

For 1 fine iron mantle.....75 00

For 2 plain black @ $45.....90 00

Total.....$642 00

Mr. Lewis allowed an advance of 10 per cent. on cost and carriage.....64 60

Total.....$706 60

The above for seven hundred and ten dollars and sixty cents is correct.

J. C. HENSLEY, for E. HENSLEY, Sup. P. B.

Approved: CHAS. S. MOREHEAD.

(d) About $70 of this bill is for after dinner coffee sets, finger bowls, and Bohemian champagne glasses, while about $40 of it is for fixing the Governor's musquito bars.

(e) This bill is for sewing the carpets and table and bed linens in the Governor's Palace.

(f) This bill is for more furniture, and also for putting the same up in proper places in the Palace.

(g) In this bill we notice the following items:

1 fine hat rack.....$50 00

Cash paid for hot house glass.....1 50

Table and book case.....40 00

Brush for Governor's house, &c.....1 25

(h) One of the items in this bill is—3 glass gloves, $4 50—for gold fish, perhaps?

(i) One item of this bill is—"8 pns. glass in kitchen and hot house, $12 00."

(k) In this bill we find "1 large sheet iron stove, $120 00." This stove cost enough for the President's parlor. We don't know where it was located amongst the Government houses here.

(l) One item in this bill is as follows: To painting frontispiece, $6 00?

(m) This bill is for "making and graveling walls at Governor's Palace."

(n) This bill is for dinner cloths, doilies and napkins.

The following statements showing the relative expenditures under the head of "Repairs upon Public Buildings and furnishing Governor's House," under the administrations of Gov. Powell and Gov. Morehead, are compiled from the printed reports of the Auditor:

Four years of Gov. Powell's Administration.

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1852, $7,310 43

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1853, 1,077 34

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1854, 3,561 62

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1855, 4,472 57

Total for four years.....$16,366 96

Three years of Gov. Morehead's Administration.

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1856, $17,340 47

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1857, 10,158 92

Expended for y'r ending Oct. 10, 1858, 11,388 52

Total for three years.....$38,887 91

The difference in favor of Democratic economy in our State administration, as exhibited in this last statement, is so striking as to render comment unnecessary.

Hon. Linn Boyd's Position.

The editor of the Lexington Statesman, who has just returned from Philadelphia, states Mr. Boyd's views of the question of Congressional protection to slavery to be consonant in all respects with those of Magoffin and those set forth by us. Here is what the Statesman says:

Much injustice has been done this distinguished gentleman of this name by the Louisville Courier, as one favoring the movement for the introduction into the next Congress of a bill embodying a slave code for the Territories. Mr. Boyd disapproves the whole movement, thinks it most unwisely, utterly barren of advantage to the South, and fraught with trouble to the party and danger to the country. He believes Congress has the power to extend to slavery protection as to all other species of property in the Territories, but does not hesitate to declare his opinion that such a demand at this time is unnecessary, impolitic, and a breach of faith with the parties to the compromise measures of 1850 and 1-54. He believes the south ought not to ask a slave code for the Territories at the hands of Congress, and is opposed to Congressional intervention at this time either to protect, or in any mode regulate slavery in the Territories. He occupies exactly the position we have taken in an article in this edition of our paper, headed "The Slave Code Issue," and it is rank injustice to him to use his name as authority for any other opinions. All this we have from Mr. Boyd's own lips, and knowing the candor and boldness with which he expresses an opinion, and that concealment of his views does not characterize the man, we do not hesitate to make this public statement. We regret that his voice cannot be heard in this canvass, but the Democracy of Kentucky have in his past life ample guarantee of his fidelity in the future, and though unable to discuss these questions on the stump, no man will doubt that he is a sound, firm, and right. Mr. Boyd is not the man to be seduced from true position by the appeals of expediency, or the clamors of demagoguery.

The Opposition Nominee.

The Opposition Convention which assembled in this city on the 18th inst., nominated, as we have before announced, John M. Harlan, Esq., of Frankfort, as the candidate of that party to represent this district in the next Congress.

The unfortunate recipient of this doubtful compliment is a young gentleman of venerable antecedents, tolerable capacity, ordinary force as a public speaker, and very limited experience in political discussion. Once a Whig, then a radical and violent Abolitionist, and now a hybrid Oppositionist, he has accomplished as many mercenary results in his brief career as any man in the country.

At first tolerant of all religions and liberal in the concession of equal rights to all men, regardless of birth, then an active participant in an infuriated crusade against the freedom of conscience and equality of birth, and again a suppliant to those whom he so lately sought to wrong, once maintaining the power of Congress to exclude slavery from the Territories, then committed to non-intervention, and now a zealous clamor for federal interference in behalf of slavery, his political opinions seem to spring rather from temporary expediency than intelligent and honest conviction. With such antecedents, we scarce know upon what platform he stands; and if we are to look to the past for guidance, it would be difficult to know how long he will maintain his present position. As an intense American, a violent declaimer against the unnaturalized citizen, and a recognized member of the notorious Frankfort clique, by whom he was, as we understand, forced on the convention, he probably obtained the little prominence which promoted his nomination, and can perhaps be fairly held subject to popular odium that combination has incurred.

Yet these gentlemen who were attached to the American party by an honest faith in the doctrines it advocated, will be guilty of an act of egregious folly were they to support this nominee with a hope of promoting their cherished measures. He has abandoned, if not the opinions he once held, certainly their avowal, and is presented by a party which has rejected even the name of "American." Altogether, it would be just that the people should hold the gentleman responsible for all the excesses of which he has been guilty in his several positions, and remember with the vacillations and pliancy of his course to the expedients and necessities of the hour. Young as he is and brief as has been his career, he has exhibited a facility to drift in the current of popular sentiment, and change his opinions as the hour demands, which many men, far senior in years, has not attained. His avowed sentiments, honestly entertained, as perhaps in courtesy we should concede, would give no clue, if we are to read the future by the past, to the votes he would cast were he elevated to the post for which he is presented.

Mr. Harlan is not without his record, short as it may be. He has been an active and ardent member of the naturalized citizens' league, and has been instrumental in stirring up the inflammatory tirades against their political rights, when, as an agent of the Frankfort clique, he traversed a portion of the State advocating prospective heresies of the Know-Nothing order. Does he adhere to the opinions he then avowed, and would he support the measures he then urged? The slave-holders of Kentucky will not forget a letter written a year or two ago from Frankfort, in an Abolition paper of Indiana, in which the writer representing himself to be an assistant editor of the American party in this State, expressed the warmest hope for the election of Morton, the Republican candidate for Governor of that State, and assured the Abolitionists that there had most cordial sympathy of the Know-Nothing leechers here. The letter, it is said, certainly emanated from the Harlan family, and it is charged upon the nominee in this canvass. We will await the proof positive, however, before making the charge. With such a record, and presented by an inharmonious convention of a mongrel faction, Mr. Harlan will have difficulties which we hardly think he has the ability to overcome.

The Discussion in Scott.

The three candidates for Congress met for the first time in public discussion at Georgetown, on Tuesday evening last. Mr. Harlan opened the debate in a speech of an hour's length, and was followed successively by Mr. Simms and Mr. Traube, each occupying the same time. A quarter of an hour to each in reply, closed the discussion. We have but a meagre report of the speeches, and can only state in general terms that the effort of the Democratic nominee, particularly his rejoinder, met the expectations of his friends, and added to the encouragement already felt for his success. Mr. Harlan's speech, we understand, abounded in unjust charges, untenable positions, and reckless assertion. It was full of vulnerable points, and may be taken as the basis of the canvass he intends to make. Mr. Traube assailed the convention held here, and announced his purpose to expose to the whole district the intrigue

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

The Express says that we endorse the resolutions on the subject of protection in the Territories, which was adopted at the Democratic meeting held in this city. This is a mistake, we endorse no such doctrine, and we are opposed to intervention in whatever shape or disguise it may be presented. No necessity exists or is likely to exist for Congressional interference to protect slavery in the Territories, and we are unwilling to go into an agitation of the subject unnecessarily by anticipating a necessity that likely never will occur.

In speaking of the resolution referred to by the Express, in a recent issue of our paper, and of the difference between it and the doctrine heretofore held by the Express, we remarked that the resolution was very good. We did not intend thereby to endorse it in any manner, but we merely meant that the doctrine it promulgates is very good in comparison with the sentiments heretofore contended for by our neighbor, which he seemed willing now to give up and take the resolution of his party in their stead.

It makes no difference to us whether Congress has or has not the power to protect slavery in the Territories. That is not the question. We contend that Congress ought not to interfere with slavery in the Territories, in any way, even if she has the power. In the first place there is no necessity for it, and in the second place we do not believe that a necessity ever can arise whilst our Government is administered by honest and competent men. The resolution which we have just referred to, asserts the right to carry slaves in the Territories is guaranteed by the common law. If this is true, the common law also offered a remedy that is adequate and complete, and in the courts, which are always erected in conjunction with the Territorial government, the slaveholder can have his rights as fully protected as he could were Congress to exercise all the power that is claimed for it. If the slave escapes from his master in a Territory where the common law permits him to be carried and held, it does not require an enactment of Congress to authorize one of the Courts of the United States to render him back to the owner. The same might be said if the Constitution authorizes the slave to be held in the Territories, for the courts organized under the constitution will take cognizance of the rights of the slaveholder, and an escaped slave could be returned to his master by the Judge of a Court, even if Congress had never uttered a word in regard to it. If Congress sees fit to point out, through the form of process, and the character of proceedings that shall be observed in the courts in making such rendition of an escaped slave, we hold that this would not be an interference on its part with the institution, but a measure to remedy already existing, the process by which it is administered, must of necessity be regulated by some power to secure uniformity—where power can be none other than the Legislature under our organization.

What we understand by protection to slavery, in the sense contended for by our neighbor of the Express, and other fire eaters in the South, is not only that they want regulation of slaves returned to their masters (which we have shown can be done without Congressional interference) but they also desire, we understand, that Congress shall pass laws regulating the institution in as full a manner as is necessary to render such property as secure as it would be under the code of one of the slave States. Such for instance as the creation of a patrol system, the regulation of course among slaves, and of the trading with slaves, the regulation of the slave trade in the Territory—the prohibition of free negroes where slaves are held—prescribing penalties for hiring slaves their own time, and in fact every regulation on the subject that is had in Kentucky, or Virginia, or Mississippi. This is what we understand from our neighbor that he wants Congress to do, and it is what we say that Congress ought not to do. If we commence to interfere in the matter at all, we will have to go the whole length, and the result of it would ultimately be, that Congress would be called upon to punish persons who printed or circulated anti-slavery newspapers or documents, or who expressed an opinion in opposition to slavery in the Territory where a slave had been held. It would amount to nothing more nor less than a position, an absolute establishment of slavery in the Territories whether people wanted it or not, or whether any portion of them wanted it or not.

Gentlemen who desire to see such a state of case as this brought about in this country, can advocate this doctrine of Congressional protection if they like, but for ourselves, we desire, we desire, we desire that there shall not be any such doctrine. The protection to slavery in the Territories, so far as to return fugitive slaves, and to punish those who interfere with the courts in doing so, and to punish those who steal slaves, is already ample and complete.

This is all the protection we want, and we are satisfied with a continuation of the guarantees we already have, without running the risk of losing them by a further agitation of the question.

Democratic Meeting.

At a meeting of the Democracy of Morgan, Floyd, Johnson, and Pike counties, (said counties comprising the 37th Senatorial district), held at the Court House, in the town of Prestonsburg, on Tuesday, May 3d, 1853, for the purpose of nominating a candidate to represent said counties in the higher branch of the Kentucky Legislature, on motion, B. F. Gurrard, of Floyd, was appointed temporary Chairman, and Thos. Washburn Secretary.

On motion, the following gentlemen were appointed a committee on resolutions, to-wit: W. H. Burns, Esq., H. Ratliff, Gen. D. Hager, and Wm. J. May, who reported the following as the permanent organization of the meeting, to-wit: W. J. May, Chairman, and John M. Rice, Secretary; and that the vote in this convention of the several counties, be according to the "Mason rule," which gives Morgan 12, Floyd 10, Johnson 8, Pike 7.

The Chair then appointed the following gentlemen a committee on resolutions, to-wit: W. H. Burns, Esq., G. M. Hamilton, D. Hager, S. Stambough, J. M. Rice, and H. Ratliff, who reported the following, viz:

Resolved, That we cordially approve of the wise, conservative, and patriotic administration of our present Chief Magistrate, James Buchanan. It has been marked with sound judgment, wise and penetrating policy, and sanctioned by the constitution of the country.

Resolved, That we fully approve of the nominations made by the Democratic State Convention, held in Frankfort on the 8th of January last, and reciprocally pledge ourselves to bring to said nominations an increased majority in this Senatorial district at the coming August election.

Resolved, That we view with alarm the organization of the so-called "Opposition" party, and condemn and abhor its mission, which promises nothing good to the country, but seeks alone to combine all factions and isms without regard to principle, to cog the wheels of Democracy, impede the onward march of the Democratic party, the party under whose administration our government has attained the height of grandeur, and to excite the nations of the earth, that finally rival in history, and has rendered our people free, prosperous and happy.

Resolved, That we with confidence trust in the sagacious wisdom and firm patriotism of the great masses of our people to detect and arrest this new deceitful engine of mischief; and therefore appeal to the masses to aid us in arresting this mischief of mischief.

Resolved, That our present firm and patriotic Senator, John P. Martin, has with diligence, wisdom and firmness, discharged every duty that the suffrage of a free people devolved on him; and that he surrenders into the hands of the people of his district the Senatorial ermine untarnished, and that he has done this and that in the district, for the faithful manner in which he has discharged his representative duties.

Resolved, That we present to the people of the district as one worthy in every respect to become his successor in office, A. L. Davidson, Esq., of West Liberty; and invite the Democracy to give him their united and hearty support.

Which resolutions were unanimously adopted, and A. L. Davidson, by acclamation, declared the nominee of the convention.

The Flight of the Duchess of Parma.

The present governments of Italy may be likened to a row of brick standing on end. They topple over at every easy push, and the fall of one involves the fall of others. The Grand Duke of Tuscany has been the first to be overthrown, and, perhaps, no one is likely to be in the question, it is none the less true that the Duchess of Parma is the second "brick" that has toppled over.

The simple announcement by telegraph was: "The Grand Duchess has taken her departure, after having instituted a Council of Regency." The new government has expressed its adhesion to Piedmont. This movement may be considered as a fact of significance, rather than of actual importance; for, though the real material aid that a small power like Parma, with its army of five thousand men, can afford, is not much, yet the fact of the retirement of the Duchess is an evident manifestation of the extent to which popular feeling is aroused, and will have its effect upon the people of other Italian countries.

The Grand Duchess, an independent Duchess, containing an area estimated at two thousand seven hundred square miles, with a population of a little over half a million souls, and with its several dependencies, lies wholly between the Apennines and the south bank of the Po. The soil is fertile and well cultivated, and great attention is paid to the rearing of cattle, both for feeding and for the milk, whence is obtained the famous Parmesan cheese. The country, after the decline of the Roman empire, became a part of Lombardy, and when that kingdom was conquered, Parma was presented to the Pope. For centuries it has been thrown about like a shuttlecock, into the hands of various masters. Though never a nation of even secondary importance, it was always a very desirable little possession, coveted for its fertile soil, its strategic position, and its rich mineral resources. Pope Paul III made a duchy of it for one of his sons or nephews, and at the downfall of Napoleon it was settled upon poor Maria Louisa for life. On her death it came into possession of the Duke of Lucrezia, which latter province was annexed to Tuscany, the Lucchese Duke changing his title with his dominions.

The present nominal ruler of Parma is a boy, the Duke Robert, who will be eleven years old on the 9th of July next. His mother, the Duchess, since the death of the previous duke, some five years since, has acted as regent, and governed the country in a quiet way, without exciting any popular demonstrations either of regard or aversion. Personally the Duchess has little to attract particular attention. She is a respectable middle-aged lady, who means well, but, as Mr. Micawber said of his son Wilkins, has never carried out that meaning in any given direction whatsoever.

The flight of the Duchess was deliberate, rather than precipitate. She seems to have decided upon it for some time, and had forwarded to Venice a large quantity of her personal property, including jewels, and money. Having secured these, the sensible Duchess decided to leave the sinking ship, and appointing a regent, she fled, it is supposed, for Venice, where, like Fanny Ellsler, the Duchess de Berri, and other notable ladies, she possesses a very comfortable and handsome palace. Her exile will awaken little sympathy here.

There is scarcely a European potentate whose movements have excited less attention in this country, and her downfall was such a necessary consequence of the Italian troubles that it will excite little surprise. As far as mere local surroundings go the Duchess need have little cause for regretting a change that sends her from the dreary plains of Parma to the island queen of the Adriatic. The capital city of her little duchy has little to interest the traveler beside the pictures of Correggio and Parmegianino, and the exiled lady will find her Venetian palace, with its rich Gothic windows, its pleasant balconies, and its delicious prospect, far more agreeable than the dreary Farnese palace of Parma, with its open arcades, its unfinished walls, and its straggling picture galleries. The dome of the Parmesan cathedral is adorned with one of Correggio's noblest frescoes; but in exchange for this the Duchess can admire the mosaics of San Marco, while the gleaming canals of Venice will prove vastly more agreeable, (especially in the summer), than the wide, dusty, and decaying streets of Parma.

In seeking refuge in Venice the Duchess places herself under the protection of the Austrians, and this course is by no means calculated to excite the sympathy of her former subjects, whom we may suppose to be as eager in the cause of Italian independence as their neighbors. Placed, as they are, directly between Tuscany and Sardinia, it would seem impossible that the enthusiasm now awakened in the bosoms of the Piedmontese and Florentines should not prove infectious to the inhabitants of the little Duchy of Parma, and, in consequence, the Duchess's flight, in the dispatch that conveys the information of the recent change in the political affairs of that state, it is but reasonable to suppose that the Duchess had, before her flight, some intimation that her further tenure of office was decidedly precarious.

It has shown itself since the revolt of Kossuth and his party in 1848. But will the Government be foolish enough to embark in the cause of Austria, and so extend the range of the conflict from the banks of the Po to those of the Rhine, and of the Weser, and the Vistula? We cannot, for ourselves, believe that they will. They have no real concern in the controversy—no material interests at stake—no political or moral ideas to propagate—no treaties binding them to participate in the struggle, short, but their community of race with the Austrians, to prompt them to a course so needless and yet pregnant with evil. It is true that Prussia is said to have placed her army on a war footing, and that some of the smaller states are about to follow her example; but as yet we regard these as merely precautionary measures, and by no means indicative of a determination to engage in the war. Prussia, in consequence, has not yet moved, and the movements of Austria into Piedmont are precipitous, to have inclined strongly from the beginning to peace, and nothing is to be gained by her in a departure from this principle. Moreover, the demonstrations of Russia upon the German frontier, now that alliance, more or less intimate, has been declared between France and Russia, will induce the German potentates to think twice, at least before they involve themselves in the Italian quarrels of Austria. France disclaims pre-eminence, and emphatically any desire to molest Germany—and though the words of Emperors are not always to be taken, there is no reason for doubting the sincerity of the avowal at this time.

The Manchester Convention has closed its labors, and put Col. Green Adams on the track to be beaten for Congress. The Colonel, we suppose, is a very clever gentleman, but alas for his politics! A mixture of Wilmot Provisionism, Abolitionism, Know-Nothingism, and Oppositionism, in which the first largely predominates, constitutes his political creed. At all events, he was formerly a loud advocate of Wilmot Provisionism, making his only speech while in Congress in favor of this Provision; and refused, and still refuses, to take back or modify any of his opinions given out in said celebrated speech. It may be that his nomination was intended to be held out as a bait to the Free-soil vote of this district, which, though small, will be of material benefit to the party who gets it in this contest. Be that as it may, the nomination of the Colonel does not set well on the stomachs of some of our Opposition friends, and we have little doubt that the whole party will be sick enough of him before the election.—Mountain Dem.

We have learned with unfeigned regret, as will the Democracy of the Ninth district, that Hon. John C. Mason declines to make the race for Congress. An honest and sincere man, a true friend, a loyal Democrat, a faithful representative, he was the unanimous choice of his party in the district; and his re-election would have been a matter of form. His declining makes it imperative necessary that a district convention be called at once; and we hope our friends in the various counties will promptly take steps to appoint delegates. Mason left off on Monday. No day has yet been named by the district committee, but we learn that the Democratic Convention of Bath, at a meeting on Monday last, appointed delegates, and suggested a meeting for Saturday, May 28th, at the place and time for the meeting of the convention. This will, we presume, suit all parties. Let us have a full convention.—Mountain Express.

The Campaign for 1853.

The above is the title of a paper published at Frankfort under the auspices of the Opposition State Central Committee, and is being circulated broadly over the State for the purpose of misrepresenting and falsifying the issues involved in the canvass, and if possible to mislead the people. It is the usual size and price of campaign documents, and is filled with the same kind of villainous stuff generally to be found in such publications. The present number (5) was placed in our hands accompanied with a request to read it. We have done so, and are forced to the conclusion that a more comprehensive and comprehensive tissue of misrepresentation and falsehood could not be conceived or expressed, than is contained in the Campaign. It comes before the people, predicting the downfall and discomfiture of the Democratic party. At what period of time and in what canvass have not these heralds of falsehood made the same predictions? The opening of every canvass witnesses the advent of these prophets, and the ears of the people are deafened with the foul blasts from their false throats, and at the close of every election they wing their flight to political perdition. The Campaign assures its readers that our overthrow will be achieved by the ponderous blows of a united conservative, yet diversified Opposition. Aye, diversified Opposition! The English language has no more comprehensive or appropriate word by which we could characterize the party, than the one selected by themselves.

Setting out without the enunciation of any distinctive principles, they are willing to extend a brother's hand and a brother's welcome to men of every hue and stamp of political opinion, and become all things to all men for the sake of victory. The only link that unites the diversified Opposition is hatred to Democracy. This is the nucleus around which cluster men of the most antagonistic views on questions of the most vital importance. And if anything was wanting to prove their title to the name which they have assumed, it is supplied in the character of the diversified ticket. Bell, it is well known, has never affiliated with the N. Y. party, but he has been denounced it time and again—he says he would have voted for the admission of Kansas into the Union under the Lecompton Constitution—yet he is the standard-bearer of the identical party denounced by him, and which proclaimed to the world that the Lecompton Constitution was a fraud and a swindle. So much for the consistency of the diversified Opposition. The Campaign utters the charge of corruption and extravagance against the Administration. The Abolitionists and Free-soilers of the North make the same charge, and it is taken up and echoed by the "diversified Opposition," thus showing that these Southern leaders of the party in Kentucky stand upon the same platform with our traduced and vilified in the North. The blue-bellied Yankee Abolitionists, with their black and barren rocks, where God's sunshine falls cold and shimmering, howls in impotent rage at the Democratic party, and the "diversified Opposition" publishes to the world their insane ravings as the quintessence of truth.—Canton Yeoman.

[From the New York Evening Post.]

The State and Prospects of the European War.

The latest news from Europe leaves no doubt that hostilities have commenced in upper Italy. It brings us manifestos from the several governments, which, though not formal declarations of war, are equivalent to declarations of war, and for a time shut out every prospect of peace. The Emperor of Austria informs his people that he has ordered his troops into the territory of Sardinia, where, we learn from other sources, they have already possessed themselves of some inconsiderable fortresses and towns. At the same time the King of Sardinia has assumed the command of his army, and has issued a circular to the Italian people stands forth as the standard-bearer of Italian independence, proclaiming that Austria tears into pieces treaties which he never respected, and that "henceforth, by right, the Italian nations are free." Thus the gage of battle has been thrown down and taken up, and before we write, probably, a decisive conflict has occurred somewhere in the vicinity of Alessandria or Genoa.

The Austrians, as we gather from the conflicting reports of the English papers, must have moved forward in several divisions. One of these, under General Baron Zobel, probably advanced from Piacenza, and another, under General Von Benedek, probably crossed the Ticino at Pavia. General Von Dufour, who is but a General of Brigade, led a division—the vanguard—across the bridge of the Ticino, and met with little resistance. The division under General Baron Reischach probably crossed the Ticino by means of a pontoon bridge, at a place which is not mentioned. The Sardinians retired from the line of the Ticino first towards Sessia, and thence towards the fortified towns of Casale and Alessandria, where they design, doubtless, to make a stand. We do not learn that the Austrians were seriously resisted at any of the points of passage, or in their advances as far as Mortara and Novara, although some fighting is spoken of at Buffalora and Mortara.

The Sardinians have waited the arrival and concentration of the French troops, which were swarming into Italy by the passes of the Alps leading to Susa, and by the sea to Genoa, leading directly to the Italian coast. There were said to be 75,000 Sardinians in Alessandria, Casale and other towns; 40,000 French at Genoa, and as many more on the way to Susa, while the whole number of Austrians on the west side of the Ticino is stated variously at from 80,000 to 120,000 men. All these forces are within a comparatively small distance of each other, and could be brought into action in a few days. According to the statistics of a writer in the London Standard, from Arona, the most Northern point already occupied by the Austrians, to Genoa, the most Southern point occupied by the French, "the distance is about 110 miles, or very nearly the same as from Susa to Buffalora. From Genoa to Alessandria it is only 46 miles, and from Alessandria to Turin less than 70 miles; so that in their two principal positions of Turin and Alessandria the Sardinians are, in the one case, within 40, and in the other within 50 miles, of their powerful allies. The Austrians, too, would be equally near their resources. Novara is about 25 miles, Mortara 10 miles, and Vercelli but some 25 miles from the Lombard frontier, and these are the points at which the first collision may be anticipated."

The result of that first encounter, when it comes, no one is able to predict; but thus far it would appear that the Austrians have not shown the celerity of movement on which it was supposed they had founded their hopes of success at the outset. They may have been retarded as it is alleged, by physical obstacles, or by the over-overflowing of the streams and the bad state of the roads, or they may have delayed their advances—though this is not very probable—in order to await the advent of the French, and encounter the united forces of the enemy in a single battle; but in either case they appear, at this distance from the scene of action, to have lost a great deal of valuable time. The order for invasion, which was issued before the 25th of April, and in the time the imperial manifesto is dated, and by the evening of Sunday, May 1st, they ought to have penetrated much further into the Piedmontese territory than they had done.

All Italy is alive with the excitement of war. In the Duchy of Parma an insurrection similar to that which drove the Grand Duke out of Tuscany has taken place, and as we remarked in another article referring to this event, the likelihood is that the revolt will prove contagious. On the demise of the King of Naples, hourly expected, we may confidently look for some disturbances there; rumors of agitation reach us from Venice, and in the Estates of the Church, the commander of the French troops has issued his proclamation warning the people against gathering in the streets, and enjoying the strictest order. How long his monarchies shall continue to be heeded is not very clear. With a sympathetic race like the Italian, any really national sentiment will spread like fire over the prairies.

We are not, however, so certain as some of the newspaper writers both at home and abroad appear to be, that this war is to carry its desolating torches over the whole of Europe. It may reach Hungary, which has the place and time for the meeting of the convention. This will, we presume, suit all parties. Let us have a full convention.—Mountain Express.

We would call the attention of our readers to the Advertisement of the Georgia State Lottery for June, in another column, by which they will see that all orders addressed to R. H. WENDOVER, Agent at Cincinnati, Ohio, will meet with prompt attention.

SUBURBAN'S SERMONS.—The fifth series of the sermons of this wonderful man have just been received by KEENE & CRUTCHER. Everybody should have a copy.

He (Hon. J. S. Chrisman) announced himself, plainly and unequivocally, in favor of non-intervention—that Congress has not the power to protect slavery in the Territories, and that if Congress was to pass a law to punish a man for stealing a negro, it would be unconstitutional—that he would vote against the passage of such a law. He repudiates the Courier in express terms, and says that it is not Democratic authority.—Louis Journal.

The above extract does Col. Chrisman injustice. We happened to hear Col. Chrisman at Campbellsville, True, he took decided ground in favor of non-intervention by Congress in the Territories; but did not discuss the question as to the power of Congress. His position is precisely the same as that of Mr. Magoffin. We hope the Journal will make the amende honorable.

Lebanon Democrat.

Gen. Wm. Johnson.—At the earnest solicitation of many friends, Gen. Wm. Johnson has consented to become a candidate to represent Scott county in the next Legislature. To this, we trust and believe, will reconcile any differences that may have before existed, and will do away with the necessity of holding a convention. We place the name of the Gen. at our mast-head to-day, feeling assured that it will give entire satisfaction to the party. He is a life-long Democrat, well versed in legislative business, and will add great strength to the Congressional and State ticket.—Georgetown Gazette.

WILMOT PROVISION.—We understand that the Opposition Convention of this district has nominated Wm. Johnson, Green Adams, Esq., for Congress. When the news reached here the Opposition were down in the mouth, and the tidings were received with a shake of the head and faces a yard long; and such were their looks that we felt truly sorry for some of our personally clever friends who belong to that party. Mr. Adams is not the choice of his party in this or Garrard county, and he will find "Jordan a hard road to travel."—Mountain Democrat.

For the Legislature.—We are authorized to announce JOHN G. JORDON as a candidate to represent the county of Anderson in the next Legislature. mar3 wkt-wte

Rheumatism Cured.

To the readers of the Yeoman: Preserve this notice. If not afflicted yourself, you may serve suffering humanity by sending it to some one who is. Dr. Mortimore, by personal treatment, and the use of his remedy, by Physicians and Druggists, has cured probably twenty thousand cases of this painful and paralyzing disease—comprising cases of every seeming form, from those of a recent inflammatory (acute) character, to old chronic cases of ten, twenty, and even thirty years' standing.

This disease is becoming more prevalent every year, and is seldom cured, or even alleviated, by the usual course of treatment. In its active form it often proves fatal, or if not soon arrested, becomes chronic—stiffens the joints, contracts the ligaments, muscles, and tendons, and thus renders the sufferer a cripple for life, or, if ever afterwards cured, even by the use of this remedy, requires longer treatment and greater expense. This is a vegetable internal remedy which cures the proprietor of it after long suffering, and all the usual remedies known had failed, and is safe to be used in any state of health—even by the most delicate female or child, and its success, in curing rheumatism, is attested by thousands, among whom are eminent physicians, ministers of various denominations, prominent journalists, and individuals of high standing throughout our country, such as should inspire confidence in every rational mind.

This evidence can be had on call at the office; or those at a distance, by addressing the proprietor, will receive, by mail, a circular of evidence. The remedy can be had at $5 per bottle, or five bottles for $20. Persons ordering at a distance can remit at the proprietor's risk by registering letter, and the medicine will be forwarded by express, or as directed, to any place in the United States or Europe.

Apply to or address DR. D. MORTIMORE, Third street, opposite Journal office, Louisville, Ky.

Dr. M. can refer to more than one thousand phylax of the efficacy of this remedy. sep9 t-w&wly
